

10 February 2023

Dear Parents,

We have had a very full week, at the end of an incredibly busy but ultimately very successful half term. We have been told during external reviews, that behaviour is exemplary, that our EYFS provision is very good and that our Phonics provision, PE, Geography, History and MFL are all excellent.

My team could not have worked any harder or been any more determined to improve the outcomes for every single child. This really is a very special school where every child is known, understood, and loved by a team that are all determined to help them achieve their full potential.

We celebrated the end of Mental Health week today, with a dance and song celebration in the playground, followed by the symbolic joining of our 'Connecting Together' paperchains. Thank you to Miss Jacobs, Mr Froud and Miss Barr for organising such an energising end to the half term.

We appreciate all of your support this term, it has been lovely to meet so many of you, when you have come into school for celebration assemblies, coffee mornings and to support in school. We ask, that if you have any concerns, please do come and speak to us directly, as that will mean that we are able to correct issues and misconceptions quickly. We work very hard to be approachable and honest in our communications with you.

Have a wonderful half term break and we will see you again on Monday 20th February.

Kind regards,

Mel Nugent

Take a #shelfie

This half-term holiday we are having a #shelfie competition in preparation for World Book Day.

We are challenging children (and staff) to take a #shelfie which features some of their favourite books and some clues to their identity. Children could include their favourite books and items which relate to their hobbies and interests or any other items which might give others a clue to their identity.

The winners in each year group will receive a gift voucher to spend at our upcoming book fair.
