Remember to include:

- *the book title
- *author
- *is it fiction or non-fiction?
- *would you recommend the book?
- *why?
- *how many stars out of 5 would you give the book?
- *you could draw a favourite picture from the book

Maths

Time

Put together a list of activities that you do in a day, this might be as simple as get up, eat breakfast, eat lunch, eat dinner and go to bed. Or you could put together a full timetable of all your activities for the day. For each activity write down the time you start and the time you finish. Then work out how long each activity takes. Finally put your daily activities in order of longest to shortest.

You could use a table like this to record your activities, or you could think of your own way.

Activity	Start time	End time	Duration

You could record the time by drawing a clock or writing in words.

Science

Make a rainbow

Use the attached files to perform an experiment to create your own rainbow. The prompt card will give you a good understanding of why this works.
